

Driving and the Elderly

There was sensible comment in the piece (Society 19/1/19) about rethinking the driving test. But it is clearly absurd to allow licences to be automatically renewed purely on the say-so of the applicant. Aged 80, I retake my Advanced Driving Test every three years with the Institute of Advanced Motorists RoadSmart. What it costs me to take the test is more than recouped by the savings on my car insurance. A model which could be introduced for everyone.
